McHenry Library

Science & Engineering Library

The UCSC University Library—comprising McHenry and Science & Engineering libraries—offers an extensive range of resources and services essential to the campus community, and to the success of the campus's research and teaching mission. These include:

- The largest collection of any library between Santa Barbara and Stanford, with nearly 1½ million volumes
- The Film & Music Center, featuring over 30,000 video and audio recordings
- The Media & Electronic Resource Center (MERC), providing access to audio and video language-learning materials
- Access to over 160 electronic databases, many including full-text articles
- Access to nearly 15,000 full-text on-line journals
- A selection of laptop computers available for in-house loan at the Science & Engineering Library
- Double-sided black-and-white printing for as little as 7¢ per page
- Reference librarians and subject specialists available seven days a week to assist you in your research during the academic year
- Both libraries open till 11.45pm Sunday-Thursday, 11pm (study-hall hours only after 8pm) Friday and Saturday during the academic year
